Hoopeston Area to participate in county alternative school

Hoopeston Area school officials on Thursday approved participating in a Vermilion County alternative school program.

The program will be for "chronically disruptive students as defined by the Illinois Safe Schools Act," said Superintendent Don Dean.

The alternative school will be housed in the Vermilion Association for Special Education building and is expected to include 15 students from the county, Dean said. Students will be in grades six through eight.

Program costs will come from VASE's administrative budget and each school will contribute the amount of state aid received for students who attend the alternative school, he said.

In other action, the school will purchase a 35-passenger special needs bus with a lift and restraints for students in wheel chairs.

A bus driver will also be added and a new bus route created, which may include transporting students to the alternative school, Dean said.

The bus is necessary because a taxi service which transported special needs students will discontinue that service this year, Dean said.

The district will seek bids on the bus, which is expected to cost as much as a 73-passenger bus without special equipment, said transportation director Darrell Brown.

In other business, the board rehired probationary teachers including: Carol Clark, Tara Laird, Annette Lockhart, Margo Slack, Lisa Schmitz, Kathy Watson, Suzette Hesser, Kathy Vines and Margy Morgan.

Also, Laura Sellers, Scott Watson, Robin Eighner, Michelle Bell, Ken Chase, Debi Lankford, Carl Ankenbrand, Tonya Behnke, Kelley Goodrum, Kristin
